Dear Hiring Manager,

My name is Andrew Musali and am a software developer. I have been developing software applications for more than three years now. Most of my experience lies in full stack web development. I have experience working with HTML5, CSS, JavaScript (React), Python (Django, Flask, Matplotlib) and prototyping with tools like Figma and Invision.

I am actively searching for a position and this opportunity is a step in the right direction to where I want to take my career. I have submitted a copy of my resume with a summary of job duties I have held and my education background.

I know am a great fit for the position because the skills I have are inline with the position requirements and I have understood the basics of applying them. I have worked with remote diverse teams in creating software products and solutions. This is mostly through engaging in community activities for software developers. I also have held job duties with roles similar to the ones listed in the list of requirements for the position. I am an avid learner and like taking on challenges. I am a team player and also a fluent speaker of English, Lusoga and Luganda with great communication skills.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Andrew Ephraim Musali
